Charity founder visits palace to collect OBE

THE founder of an award-winning charity was presented with her OBE by the Duke of Cambridge at Buckingham Palace last week.

Rafaat Mughal, from Wood Green, founder and director of the JAN Trust, was rewarded in the New Year's Honours list for services to disadvantaged women and the community in Haringey.

She set up the charity in 1989 after streams of women began visiting her home looking for advice – who were often hindered in their ambitions by a language barrier.

Now, as well as running courses in ICT, fashion and design to boost people's work prospects, the trust also focuses on health and inequalities, domestic violence, forced marriage and courses to help mothers prevent their children being radicalised online.

Mrs Mughal said after receiving her award: "I am honoured to be awarded an OBE. It is such an achievement to be recognised for the work I have been carrying out for the past 25 years, supporting disadvantaged women and assisting them with their integration into society and tackling the violence and abuse they suffer. I am flattered to receive this award."

Honoured to meet you: Rafaat Mughal is presented to Prince William

'I DIDN'T JUST NAME ACCUSED FOR CASH'

A WITNESS giving evidence at the trial of a man accused of murdering PC Keith Blakelock during the Broadwater Farm riot has denied naming the defendant to claim a £5,000 award.

The witness, using the pseudonym John Brown and with his voice being distorted to protect his identity, told the Old Bailey that he had seen Nicky Jacobs stab the police officer with a machete during the troubles in Tottenham in October 1985.

The former Park Lane Boys gang member yesterday said he had witnessed PC Blakelock curl up into a ball as he tried to protect himself from the mob attacking him and added: "I just heard screams of 'Help, help, help'."

Jurors heard that Mr Brown had not mentioned Jacobs in the statement he gave to police about the riots in 1986.

Defence barrister Courtenay Griffiths asked Mr Brown about his claim in a 1993 statement that he saw Jacobs using a machete, whether it was purely for the £5,000 reward he received from police?

"No, definitely not," replied Mr Brown, who the court heard was in his late teens at the time of the riot.

At a fresh investigation into PC

Blakelock's death in 1992, Mr Brown was included in a list of "kickers" – those who had not used a weapon – rather than "stabbers".

The "kickers" were granted immunity from prosecution as police tried to find the killers.

Mr Griffiths also put it to Mr Brown that he had put his cousin up as an eyewitness, as for a "realistic prospect of prosecution" three or four witnesses would need to come forward.

Mr Brown said he "totally disagreed" with the claim.

Jacobs denies murder and the trial continues.

Killed: PC Keith Blakelock

Duggan legal challenge gets go-ahead

MARK Duggan's family has been given the go-ahead to launch a legal challenge against a ruling that he was lawfully killed.

On Friday, three Court of Appeal judges ruled that there was an "arguable" case for a judicial review into the death of the 29-year-old in Ferry Lane, Tottenham, in August 2011.

The Broadwater Farm resident was shot dead by a police marksman after officers stopped a minicab in which he was travelling, with his death sparking riots that spread across the borough.

In January, an inquest jury ruled by eight to two that he had been lawfully killed, even though he had not been holding a gun when he was shot dead.

Mr Duggan's family said after the ruling that they would fight the verdict in the courts.

They have now been given leave to pursue a legal challenge over police practices linked to Mr Duggan's death.

The family's legal team argued that there were concerns about police officers directly involved in fatal shootings conferring before producing accounts.

Three men have 'Yid' charges discontinued

THREE men charged in connection with using the word "Yid" at two Spurs home matches last year have had criminal proceedings against them discontinued.

Gary Whybrow, 31, from west London, and Sam Parsons, 24, of Amersham, Buckinghamshire, had been charged following 2-1 Europa League win over FC Sheriff on November 7.

Peter Ditchman, of Bishop's Stortford, Hertfordshire, had been accused of using the same term during the 3-0 Premier League defeat by West Ham United on October 6.

The Crown Prosecution Service decided on Friday not to continue proceedings.

Beehive buzzing again

THE Beehive pub in Tottenham will be reopening at 5pm on Friday.

The historic boozer, in Stoneleigh Road, will be run by Camden Bars, which has a string of venues in north and east London.

The pub will offer cask ale from the nearby Redemption Brewing Company and burgers and pulled pork from Kentish Town-based Phileas Hog.

It will also be available as a venue for community groups. For more details, email info@beehiven17.com

Help to quit smoking

STAFF from the Smoke Free Enfield and Haringey Service will be outside Wood Green Library today and tomorrow to offer advice about quitting smoking.

Their visit to the library, in High Road, Wood Green, from 9.30am to 4pm, to coincide with national No Smoking Day today.

Anyone unable to attend can call the free helpline on 0800 652 8405.

Women's day speakers call for a change in attitude to the top jobs

Viola Ajdini

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

INFLUENTIAL women of Enfield gathered on Saturday to highlight the ongoing need to raise aspirations on International Women's Day.

Speakers at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, told the audience about their observations working with teenagers and young women.

They included Sue McDaid, head of regulatory services at Enfield Council, Adria Bennett, who works with the Youth Engagement Panel, and Shirley Mason, from Face Front Inclusive Theatre.

Ms McDaid said that women could be prevented from taking managerial jobs due to the difficulty of balancing their roles at home and at work.

"Statistics have shown that there are no women directors in Enfield Council, 42 per cent of women said that they found managing positions involved long hours and were not feasible," she said.

The Youth Engagement Panel has been working in the community, with schools and through workshops, to encourage positive attitudes from children.

Speaking afterwards, Ms Bennett said: "The community needs a lot of work. The school structure needs to change. A reason, I've found, for girls getting into gang-related issues is the change in equality, the need to be equal and the same as their male companions.

"Girls are going through the same issues that boys are facing. At the same time they're not being taken seriously by males and feel the need to compete, whether it's for crime or aggression."

Ms Mason added: "Drama has been important in helping young girls. I see how young people come out through drama and learn about themselves.

This year's International Women's Day theme was Inspiring Change.

Christine Hamilton, who was chairwoman for the event and is Enfield Council's cabinet member for community well-being and public health, said: "We still have a great deal to overcome improving working conditions for women, recognising that women can and should compete for the top jobs."

Ms McDaid added: "I would like to quote – 'The question isn't who is going to let me, it is who is going to stop me', by Ayn Rand – just to say that you are the only one that can stop you."

Burrowes welcomes aide's resignation following 'inexcusable' Facebook rants

- Green said he was 'sick to the back teeth' of 'wretched women MPs'
- Claimed feminists 'need a good slap' following altercation on a bus

By Koos Couvee

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE aide to Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes who wrote a string of misogynistic comments on Facebook quit his job on International Women's Day.

Stewart Green, 26, resigned as election agent for the Enfield Southgate Conservatives and parliamentary assistant to Mr Burrowes after he found himself at the centre of a scandal over a series of posts on the social media site.

They included one in which he wrote he was "sick to the back tooth" at "these wretched women MPs who seem to be constantly going on about there not being enough women in front-line politics".

On Friday the Advertiser reported that Mr Green had published a post on February 16 saying: "This country has been a gradual decline southwards towards the dogs ever since we started cow-towing [sic] to the cretinous pseudo-equality demand of these whinging imbeciles."

And he added: "The whinging is a covering up for lack of political ability and depth of knowledge of how our political system works."

In August last year, Mr Green described an incident which occurred after he offered a woman a seat on a bus, only to be told that his gesture was demeaning and that she could cope by herself.

Online controversy: Stewart Green's posts went back as far as last August (see below)

In the Facebook post, he described the woman as a "fat ginger bitch" before stating: "I am absolutely sick and tired of this feminism nonsense. It really has gone too far."

"Quite a few of these women need a good slap round the face."

When approached by this newspaper on Friday, Mr Green admitted writing the posts but said that they were made privately and did not affect his professional life.

But in a statement later that day he said: "I accept that these statements are not acceptable and I apologise unreservedly for making them."

Mr Green had been taken on by Mr Burrowes and the Enfield Southgate Conservative Association in January.

Commenting on his former aide's online posts, Mr Burrowes said: "Stewart Green was employed as my constituency assistant for two months. I became fully aware of his Facebook comments when published on Friday evening."

"The comments were appalling and totally unacceptable and inexcusable."

"He was right to apologise unreservedly and to resign as my assistant and association agent with immediate effect."

In other posts on the website, Mr Green compared people in an Edmonton Green supermarket to animals. He wrote: "Why pay for an entrance fee to London Zoo when one can just wander round Asda Edmonton and have exactly the same experiences?"

He also compared his experience of dieting to "sweating like a dyslexic on Countdown".

And last Monday, Mr Green posted: "BBC3 should go – all it seems to do is prop up the common scum lifestyle."

Mr Green's resignation came just over a week after the Conservative Party expelled councillor Chris Joannides, who was embroiled in a race-hate row after a raft of Islamophobic comments and images appeared on his personal Facebook page.

In February last year, the Advertiser detailed islamophobic and anti-Turkish comments made by him, including references to a burka-clad woman whose children were compared to bin bags.

Before being barred by the party Mr Joannides, who represents the Grange ward as an independent councillor, had been reelected to run in the local elections in May by the Enfield Southgate Conservative Association.

"I became aware of his Facebook comments on Friday night. The comments were appalling and totally unacceptable and inexcusable. He was right to apologise unreservedly and to resign as my assistant and association agent with immediate effect"

Getting the lowdown: Enfield North MP Nick de Bois, right, at the jobs fair chatting with Ridgeway Garage director Nick Kaye and staff member Elizabeth Banjo

Recruitment fair proves just the job

MORE than 700 people attended a jobs fair hosted by Enfield North MP Nick de Bois on Friday.

The four-hour recruitment drive at Southbury Leisure Centre, in Southbury Road, Enfield, included stalls from construction firms Lovells, Ardmore and the Construction Industry Training Board, engineering companies Kelvin Hughes Ltd and Johnson Matthey as well as Barclays, the Metropolitan Police and supermarkets offering training opportunities, apprenticeships and up to 250 jobs.

Mr de Bois said that following the event, 36 people have been chosen for second interviews and 65 were invited to a selection day for supermarket giant Tesco.

The Conservative MP said he also met with people looking for advice on how to start a new business.

"I was very impressed with the sheer determination of many of the jobseekers," he said. "Jobs fairs can be win-win. For the employee they get in front of companies' representatives immediately, which as every jobseeker will tell you is often the toughest hurdle to overcome, and for employers they meet people hungry to work without the usual recruitment costs."

After noting a trend in over-50s seeking work the MP said he is considering holding a one-off event to support older jobseekers.

Wheelie great: mini-Holland application passed

£30million cycling bid
approved

Pedal power: If a consultation proves favourable, the plans will see cars banned from Church Street, in Enfield Town

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A BID for funding to transform the borough into a cycling haven has been triumphant.

The Greater London Authority has awarded £30million to Enfield to turn the borough into a "mini-Holland" with segregated cycling lanes, redesigned town centres and a raft of measures to make roads safe for cyclists.

Alongside Enfield, Kingston-upon-Thames and Waltham Forest have also been successful with a bid for the multi-million-pound investment.

The winning bid included proposals to transform Enfield Town centre into a bike-friendly zone by redesigning the one-way system that can leave cyclists trapped between lanes of fast-moving traffic.

However, there was uproar among traders in Enfield Town over the plans. They fear changes, including banning cars from Church Street and reintroducing a two-way system in Cecil Road, will see their takings drop dramatically.

But Adrian Lauchlan, the borough co-ordinator for the London Cycling Campaign, stressed that the investment would benefit the entire borough.

"The aim of the scheme is that it is trying to encourage the ordinary person or the non-cyclist to help them take to the roads with confidence," he told the Advertiser.

Mr Lauchlan stressed that by getting more people on their bikes, there would be less traffic congestion on the roads, people would be healthier and pollution levels would drop throughout the borough.

"People say they don't cycle short journeys to work or to the shops because they don't feel safe," he said, "and under this scheme there will be free cycle training and the council will map out quiet and green way routes throughout Enfield."

"We want to protect those people on our roads who are not protected by a tonne of metal."

"What I would say is Enfield Council will put it out to full consultation – it's not a done deal."

The plans also include redesigning Edmonton Green roundabout to use a Dutch-style design of keeping bicycles and vehicles separate and providing storage for bikes at railway stations for commuters.

Enfield's cabinet member for environment

Chris Bond said that the money would "revolutionise" transport in the borough.

He said: "We are absolutely committed to improving our cycling network, transforming our town centres for residents and getting more people on their bikes – and this investment will radically accelerate that process."

Not one direction: Cecil Road would become two-way again

Charalambous is again picked to fight Burrowes

A LEADING councillor has been selected to contest the Enfield Southgate parliamentary constituency for Labour at next year's general election.

Bambos Charalambous, Enfield Council's cabinet member for culture, leisure, youth and localism, was voted by party members to take the fight to Conservative MP David Burrowes.

He was chosen on Saturday at a meeting of the Enfield Southgate Constituency Labour Party at Southgate College, in High Street.

Following his selection in a vote by more than 270 party members, Mr Charalambous, who currently represents Palmers Green, said his election campaign would focus on jobs, housing and opportunities for young people.

"Young people have really suffered under this government, while most people have seen the costs of living rise dramatically," he told the Advertiser.

"I believe that people have seen what the Tories are really like in government and that the Labour Party is genuinely different."

"The lives of ordinary people have been adversely affected and people need to be made aware of that and we need to take up the fight for them."

"From Ladderswood, all the way to Hadley Wood, we are going to target every area."

It is the second time that Mr Charalambous will contest the seat. In 2010, he was defeated by Mr Burrowes by 7,626 votes.

This time, he said, things were going to be different. He added: "I think the Labour Party is in a very different position and has a different message compared to 2010, a much more positive one. I can't wait to take the fight to David Burrowes."

In what was described by Labour insiders as a "close contest", the councillor trumped his main rival Ibrahim Dogus, fundraiser for the Enfield Southgate Labour Party.

The other candidates were Lynda Rice, a councillor in Barking and Dagenham, in east London, and Chingford-based Julia Jaye Charles, chief executive and founder of the Equalities National Council, an organisation which acts on behalf of disabled people and carers from black and minority ethnic communities.

Businesses get lowdown on credit

By Koos Couvee

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

ENTREPRENEURS from across the borough gathered on Monday at a council-backed event aimed at bringing businesses and lenders closer together.

The Access to Finance event at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, saw more than 70 start-ups and small and medium-sized businesses come together to network and learn about new and alternative ways to get credit.

Alan Sitkin, Bowes ward councillor and co-ordinator of Enfield Council's New Directions programme, which aims to boost economic growth in the borough, opened the proceedings with a speech on the importance of finding local solutions to Enfield's economic woes.

Speaking afterwards, he said: "There is not enough lending to local businesses because of the distance to banks' headquarters and we want to create this proximity and familiarity while bringing businesses and lenders together."

"We also want to explore alternatives, such as peer-to-peer lending schemes, which bring savers and borrowers together and cut out the banks in the middle."

Mr Sitkin added that the council was looking into setting up an Enfield branch of Funding Circle, an enterprise which allows individuals to lend to each other and small businesses.

Other speakers included John Spindler, chief executive of Capital Enterprise, a not-for-profit organisation, which provides training advice to business in London, who gave an overview of the alternative sources of credit such as peer-to-peer and crowd funding, and Peter Lovell, chief executive of credit union North London Community Finance, discussed access to start-up loans.

One of the budding entrepreneurs who attended was Yemi Raiwe, who set up her food and condiments business Morgan House Foods Ltd in May last year, thanks to a loan from Enterprise Enfield, which supports start-ups in the borough and held a workshop at Monday's event.

She said: "It's a real challenge to get credit as a start-up simply because the banks don't know how you've performed over time. It's a real chicken and egg situation. I had a good chat with Mr Lovell and Mr Spindler and they were very encouraging and gave me some pointers about where I can access credit."

Des Johnson, chief executive of Enterprise Enfield, said: "The event was an excellent opportunity for business owners and start-ups to find out about the best options for accessing finance."

"The environment is changing and there is now a need to look at a broader range of choices for raising finance."

Pensioner hits out at wife's 'atrocious' care in hospital

A PENSIONER says that pressure on hospital beds has resulted in his wife being discharged too early on two occasions.

Robert Marlborough, 76, of Barclay Road, Edmonton, said the care that his 77-year-old wife Pauline received at Barnet Hospital was "atrocious".

Mrs Marlborough, who lives at the Woodbury Manor care home, in Clay Hill, Enfield, was taken to nearby Chase Farm Hospital eight weeks ago after she had a nervous breakdown, one of many episodes she has suffered since she lost a baby in the 1970s, her husband told the Advertiser.

When mental health doctors discovered she had a chest infection, she was admitted to Barnet Hospital, where she stayed for two weeks.

She was then placed back into the care of the Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Mental Health Trust at Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, but shortly afterwards she was taken back to Barnet Hospital because the infection had returned.

She was again discharged after two weeks to mental health staff at Chase Farm, but was not accepted because her condition had worsened, Mr Marlborough said.

She was transferred instead to a ward at Chase Farm and discharged to her care home after being declared medically fit two weeks ago.

However, her chest problems returned on Tuesday last week and she was taken to North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton.

"These days, when you are admitted to hospital, it's all about how quickly they can get you out," said Mr Marlborough. "The care my wife received at Barnet was atrocious."

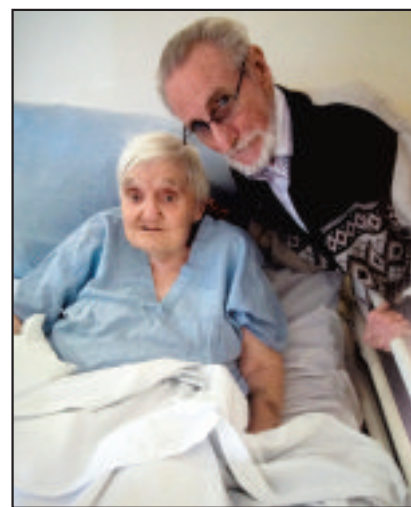

A spokesman for the mental health trust said it could not comment on the case, but added: "If it was felt a patient's physical health required further treatment, we would suggest they remain with the acute trust."

A Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust spokeswoman said: "A patient is only transferred from Barnet to Chase Farm if a consultant agrees this is the right thing to do."

Mr Marlborough added: "The government is under pressure to save money, but in doing so they have lost the love and care that should come with nursing."

Mrs Marlborough is currently undergoing treatment at North Mid.

Tory MP set to lead rebellion in the Commons

ENFIELD North MP Nick de Bois is expected to lead a Tory revolt against new legislation allowing the government to close or downgrade NHS hospitals without consultation.

Mr de Bois was set to defy the government last night in a House of Commons vote on the Care Bill, which contains a clause permitting administrators appointed to oversee struggling hospital trusts in England to downgrade and even close neighbouring trusts without consulting clinicians or patient groups.

The clause was inserted into the bill after Health Secretary Jeremy Hunt was told by the Court of Appeal last year that he had acted outside his powers when he tried to cut accident and emergency and maternity services at Lewisham Hospital, in south-east London – after a neighbouring trust went into administration.

Mr de Bois said: "I oppose this clause because my experience of consultation is that it is flawed and even in its existing form leaves the influence of patients and residents at a minimum."

"When a trust is taken into administration, the government has to act, but the idea of closing a hospital without any consultation is completely unacceptable."

"A well-run hospital can still be downgraded even if has not put a foot wrong. This is not only contrary to the spirit of localism, it is also unfair."

The Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust, which is set to be taken over by the Royal Free Hospital, in Hampstead, is one of 21 English trusts about which the NHS Trust Development Authority has expressed concern.

Monitor, the health service regulator, is currently assessing the Royal Free bid.

Monty Meth, life president of the Enfield Over 50s Forum, fears that Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, could be very vulnerable if the takeover does not succeed.

"In light of this new legislation it could be over for Chase Farm within days," he said. "I urge councillors and GPs to write to Monitor in support of the takeover."

Bestiality case man's jail term is suspended

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN who tried to engage in an act of bestiality with cows and sheep has avoided jail.

Paul Lovell, 61, of Magpie Close, Enfield, who was found guilty of outraging public decency by a jury at Wood Green Crown Court last month, was sentenced on Thursday to four months in prison, suspended for 18 months.

On January 30, it took a jury little over two hours to convict the former computer engineer of trying to engage in sexual acts with the farm animals on September 4, 2013.

During the course of the trial the court heard from a couple who were trying to have a picnic under an oak tree in a field near Archers Wood, off Whitewebbs Lane, Enfield.

Tree surgeon Lawrence Stephen recounted how he had watched as a man, who was naked, apart from his socks and shoes, tried to lure or attract the animals' mouths towards his genitals.

Mr Stephen said Lovell had "sort of tried to thrust his waist towards the cows, using his hands to guide the cows' mouths towards his crotch".

He added: "He wasn't successful with whatever he was trying to do with the cows – so he resorted to the sheep," which, Mr Stephen explained, were at the opposite end of the field.

He told the court that watching the scene made him feel "sick".

The witness called police, who told the court that when they first discovered Lovell lying in the field he was not wearing trousers or a shirt and he tried to pull up his shorts as they walked towards him.

In his defence Lovell had told the jury that he was having a nap in the field and when he woke up he tried to chase between ten and 12 sheep away from him. He had told the police he was "just relaxing".

Columnist

Chickenshed founder

ON Friday we opened our new spring show to a packed audience. An Awfully BIG Performance is aptly named because we have a huge cast – 659 people to be precise.

We started to develop this production more than a year ago as a part of the initial discussions surrounding how we should celebrate our 40th birthday.

I invited input from a huge range of people who have been a part of the work, asking them to highlight what they considered to be the moments from Chickenshed's production archive that illustrated our essence.

The resulting list was vast and diverse, but what was fascinating was the rationale that people attributed to these choices.

Whether the impact had been made on them as an audience member or participant, it went to a place that was personal and deep.

An Awfully BIG Performance comes from the heart of who we are, with everyone contributing to the inspiration of this show. And at Chickenshed "everyone" really does mean "everyone" – resulting in the awfully big cast.

Our aim has been to give our audience a glimpse of our past, present and, most importantly future. We feel this production beautifully showcases the breadth of Chickenshed – the talent of the performers, the quality of the work – and we hope that everyone watching will feel a wide range of emotions, from humour through to heartbreak, but always with understanding.

We feel extremely lucky to have been able to produce diverse, challenging and entertaining theatre for 40 years. But this has only been possible through the participation of our audiences and everyone who has supported us through our awfully big adventure.

Wrong to take a stand

RE: "Spurs hope to build 500-seater stand" (Advertiser, February 19).

I see that "resident" Jose O'Ware is again showing her concern for our green belt.

What is wrong with that woman? Despite living well away from the site, and therefore wouldn't be affected, she has voiced her opinion on a subject that shows her lack of research and understanding.

The proposed stand is obviously being built for the comfort and well-being of existing spectators and it would, therefore, have no extra impact on "congestion on the narrow country road".

This is the same concerned resident who was so vociferous when Enfield Football Club were exploring the possibility of moving their then existing facilities to a different part of King George V Playing Fields.

At that time she made no effort to contact the club to find out what was proposed.

Then, at least it was her concern for the rights of dog walkers and not any additional traffic problems.

If she has any children or grandchildren, then I am sure that she would not allow them to partake in that disgusting habit of football.

Poor roads are driving me potty

I AM writing regarding the state of the roads in Enfield.

Residents have contacted me about the amount of potholes there are in the borough – this is just one example, right.

We have Enfield's Labour council pumping out messages about the amount of work it does improving our roads, yet the reality of the condition of them tells a very different story.

Potholes are now numerous across the borough.

Enfield is an outer London borough with both rural and built-up areas, making it essential that our roads are in a good condition so that we are able to get around whether it be by car, bike or public transport.

And currently our roads are not in the condition they should be.

I am asking the council to do its job and mend our roads because clearly at moment it is failing to deliver the level of service expected by the tax-paying residents of Enfield.

Councillor Joanne Laban Shadow cabinet member for environment

Projects a waste of our money

I COULD not help noticing how many road and traffic proposals have appeared in your newspaper this month and last, as well as the various notices put up by Enfield Council.

It seems the council is determined to spend as much as possible before the budget year ends.

I have requested a list of projects for February and March, but doubt that I will get it.

One of the projects is to raise the pavement opposite Oakwood station.

However, speaking to a bus driver, he said that in the past ten years he might have had to help two people unable to get aboard, but in any case the new buses solved the problem.

Another waste of money is the two taxi ranks being installed in The Bourne, in Southgate.

These remain unused as the Burleigh Gardens rank is more than sufficient – and it is rare to see more than one taxi there, if any at all.

The extra rank in Chase Side is also unnecessary, causing more congestion.

Pity the council insists on using our money like this instead of returning it or reducing our council tax.

Mike Dehaan

Reduce council head count by three quarters

RE: Edgar Meto's observations "Landlords opposed to licensing scheme" (Advertiser, February 19).

As a landlord owning a vast number of residential/commercial properties, from Nottingham to Dover, I vehemently oppose this crass, stupid idea of further proposed interference in a democratic society.

Councils should be reduced from carrying out activities other than those they are prescribed by law to fulfil as the cost of running these monolithic authorities with their build-up pension funds is enormous.

Such activity should be culled immediately. Reduce the head count by 75 per cent and just keep essential workers there for roads/sewerage/refuse collection and put the others out to useful employment.

I go along with Mr Meto that private landlords should go one stage further and refuse to participate in this stupid idea.

R Dudding

Make donation to flood appeal

THE president of Rotary International in Great Britain and Ireland Nan McCreddie said: "We are relaunching our UK Flood Appeal as we know from previous experience that once water levels finally start to drop and the clean-up starts, the real work will begin."

"For many people it will be months before they can move back into their homes. Money donated to the fund will be used to provide help with the repair, refurbishment of community facilities damaged by the floods."

Please make cheques payable to RIBI Donation Trust and send to the Rotary Club of Enfield Chase at PO Box 1111, Enfield, EN1 9JW, or visit the Rotary's UK Flood Appeal website.

Thank you.

Show protesters you give a hoot

RE: Cat Hill campaign.

We would like to thank Kim Coleman, right, and her loyal supporters who have campaigned against the development at the top of Cat Hill.

They have increasingly over the past four weeks been there in all weather in their endeavour to stop the development going ahead.

All they ask in return is that passers-by give them a hoot from their cars in recognition of what they are doing.

It seems totally unfair that it is not only Enfield, but also Barnet residents who will suffer due to this scheme.

Therefore, a big thank you to all in their battle, which they are fighting not only for themselves, but many others.

Man badly hurt in hit-and-run

POLICE are appealing for witnesses after a man was knocked down while he was using a zebra crossing outside a Tube station.

The 61-year-old suffered serious leg injuries and a dislocated shoulder as he crossed the road outside Arnos Grove station, in Bowes Road, just after 8.30pm on February 28. He was taken to hospital by paramedics.

Police were called to the scene and are now investigating as the car involved failed to stop.

Anyone with information is asked to contact the Serious Collision Investigation Unit on 020 8597 4874 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Collision driver arrested on firearms charge

Aftermath: The scene of the collision in Enfield

A MAN suffered back injuries and had to be cut out of his car by firefighters after it collided with another vehicle in Enfield last week.

A silver Vauxhall and a dark grey Audi were involved in the collision at the junction of Parsonage Lane, Silver Street and Baker Street, at around 9.15am on Wednesday.

Three fire engines and two ambulances attended the scene, as well as a car from the London Ambulance Service and officers from Enfield Police.

Firefighters had to cut the roof off the Vauxhall to free the injured man, who was taken to North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, by paramedics to be treated for back injuries.

The driver of the Audi, a 20-year-old woman, was taken to an east London hospital. She was not seriously injured.

The driver of the silver Vauxhall was later arrested for a firearms offence. Police said this was unrelated to the cause of the collision.

Albert Yarboi, 44, an Enfield Council employee, from the Civic Centre nearby, witnessed the crash.

He said: "I was walking down the road and heard a loud bang and when I looked up, I saw both cars drifting to the same side of the road."

"The woman in the Audi jumped out of the car straightaway and was screaming she had a baby in the back. She opened the back and took the baby and went to sit on a bench on the side of the road. She was hysterical."

"I went to check on her and then I walked to the other car, there was a guy in there. Initially, he did not answer, I maintained eye contact with him and he managed to nod at me after a while." Silver Street was reopened at 11.30am.

Woman's body was discovered in hotel room

A WOMAN who went missing from her home last month was found dead in a hotel room the day after she vanished.

Janna Hardin, 47, was reported missing from her home in Natal Road, Bounds Green, on February 18. After police appeals for information on her whereabouts, her body was discovered in a hotel room in Tavistock Place, central London, the next day.

She was pronounced dead at the scene and next-of-kin have been informed.

Police are not treating the death as suspicious.

Missing teenager sought

POLICE are appealing for help to trace a teenage boy who has been missing for more than a week.

Karim Neched, 16, was last seen leaving his home in Enfield at 8am on Tuesday last week.

Police say they have become increasingly concerned for Karim's welfare. It is out of character for him not to contact his family.

He is described as a dark-skinned European boy, 6ft tall and of slim build. He has very short brown hair.

It is not known what clothing he was wearing at the time he went missing.

It is thought he may be in Enfield, Camden, Essex or Hertfordshire.

Anyone with information about his whereabouts is asked to call police on 101.

Squatters block Samaritans' bid to renovate hall

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

SQUATTERS have moved into a landmark building, scuppering a charity's plans to build a community centre on the site.

The Tin Tabernacle, in Herbert Road, beside Bowes Park station, is a distinctive, corrugated iron, Quaker-style hall that was built in 1848 as a temporary church for railway workers.

It has been owned by the Samaritans since the 1970s, but gradually fell into disrepair over three decades until it was eventually deemed unsafe for human habitation.

Last year, the charity announced that it would be submitting a planning application and launching a fundraising campaign to transform the hall into a working community space once again.

Although the charity has since gained planning permission for the renovation, the arrival of squatters has left the project in limbo.

A spokesman from the Samaritans told the Advertiser that solicitors had been instructed to instigate legal action against the squatters.

He added: "North London Samaritans have been granted planning permission for the building, which will, in due course, be converted into a community space to include the charity's activities."

As of Monday, armchairs and plastic seats could be seen outside the building and a new padlock had been placed over the gate – effectively barring entry to the site.

Occupied: The Tin Tabernacle

Herbert Road resident Andy Pratt admits it is frustrating that the plans for the redevelopment have effectively been frozen.

"I think it is upsetting and it is a shame," he told the Advertiser. "The Samaritans had worked up a plan that everyone was pretty happy with and now that seems to be on hold."

He admitted that the current state of the property market in London might have forced the squatters into the ramshackle building and added: "They must be pretty desperate. I wouldn't want to live there, but people need somewhere to live."

MP rails about the frequency of trains in his constituency

MP ANDY Love has called for improvements to rail infrastructure and more frequent train services as new figures revealed a surge in the number of passengers in his Edmonton constituency.

The figures from the Office of Rail Regulation show that the five stations in the constituency – Angel Road, Bush Hill Park, Edmonton Green, Ponders End and Silver Street – recorded more than 4.2million journeys over 2012/13, up from 3.8m the previous year.

There was an increase of about 40,000 at Angel Road and Ponders End while Edmonton Green experienced a 280,000 rise.

Mr Love said the growth in the number of passengers was a result of the wider regeneration of the Lea Valley and urged Abellio Greater Anglia, which runs train services in the area, to improve station facilities and operate a more frequent service.

He said: "We don't have a Tube station, so the train is what a lot of commuters depend on."

"These recent figures show just how highly used our stations are and the growth in use is only going to intensify as the regeneration of the Lea Valley is rolled out."

"A shuttle service from Seven Sisters could immediately double the frequency of trains at stations like Bush Hill Park and Enfield Town. Train capacity must be improved, too."

An Abellio Greater Anglia spokeswoman said: "Since the franchise began we have worked to improve the service, extended the Oyster scheme to more stations, improved customer information and invested in our stations. We have a positive dialogue with Mr Love and we will continue to explore opportunities for service improvements."

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A TOPPING-OUT ceremony took place at a major new community building in Enfield Lock last week.

The Ordnance Unity Building, on the corner of Ordnance Road and Hertford Road, will house a library, a GP surgery and a community space.

On Thursday, the roof to the spanking new centre was fixed in place, meaning that the building is now watertight and all set for the final raft of works, which are scheduled for completion this summer.

The multi-purpose centre will replace the previous Ordnance Road Library, which was built in 1976 and demolished in April last year to make way for the new building. To tide bookworms over until the summer, a temporary library has been operating at 65 Ordnance Road.

Enfield Council's cabinet member for public health Christine Hamilton attended the topping-out ceremony and said that the new centre would benefit every aspect of the lives of residents in the area.

She said: "This project has been planned with local people, the NHS and the council. It will soon be complete and established as an indispensable community building for people of all ages to use and enjoy."

The contractor responsible for building the eagerly awaited centre said it was on course to complete the project by the summer and was keen to stress the level of community engagement it had experienced during the building process.

Jonathan Hall, construction director of Graham Construction, said: "We are tremendously proud to be playing our part in delivering this excellent facility for the community in Enfield."

"There has been a great deal of interest and enthusiasm for the new centre since we started work on the site and I'm sure it will be warmly welcomed and well utilised by local people."

"We believe that we are delivering a first-class resource for the community which demonstrates our commitment to building a strong relationship with Enfield Council."

Cat Hill protesters will not be felled

Group plans legal bid to prevent trees being chopped down

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE Cat Hill protesters have refused to admit defeat and are now launching a legal bid to stop developers from chopping down ancient trees at the site.

The leader of the protest group Kim Coleman has said that the band of campaigners will now be seeking to take out an emergency injunction at the High Court to stop the development company, L&Q Housing, from felling any more trees on the site.

The developers received planning permission in 2013 to build a 231-home estate on the site of the former Middlesex University campus in Cat Hill, Cockfosters, on the border of Enfield and Barnet.

But residents near the planned estate have always maintained that the site is too ecologically important to hand over to property developers.

And the last few weeks have seen a band of determined protesters blockade the site entrance – barring lorries from entering.

L&Q Housing insists it has maintained strict eco-friendly procedures throughout, and a spokeswoman told the Advertiser: “Our specialist tree experts and ecologists continue to communicate closely with the council and Natural England, following the detailed planning permission granted by Enfield Council last year.

“Our aim is to create a site that will offer improved and more diverse habitats to support wildlife and bio-diversity.

“This work will see us introducing more native planting on to the site and adopting an active 25-year tree management programme.”

Ms Coleman said the campaign group had also submitted a formal complaint to the Met Police because “the decision to change the land use from educational to housing was taken at a closed council meeting that was never open to public consultation”.

A spokesman from Enfield Council said: “The decision was taken at an open planning committee meeting held at Ashmole School in front of 400 people, and a full consultation was carried out.”

Have you got what it takes to be the Face of Enfield?

'Show us some enthusiasm': Tas Panteli

READERS are being invited to nominate themselves as the Face of Enfield by submitting a selfie to this newspaper.

In conjunction with Pure Hair and Beauty and department store Pearsons, the Enfield Advertiser & Gazette is searching for three people to represent the Aveda specialist salon on its website, business cards and branding throughout the shop in Windmill Hill, Enfield.

The competition is split into three categories – classic, funky and men's. Entrants are asked to email a selfie, including their hair, plus their name, address and contact number, to faceofenfield@nlhnews.co.uk by April 30.

Tas Panteli, who has been nominated best men's stylist in the annual English Hair and Beauty awards, owns the salon.

He said: "We wanted to do something a bit fun, that's not going to cost anything to enter and is open to anyone, men and women, young and mature."

"We want to use local people for our website and branding rather than Photoshopped models."

A panel of judges from the salon, Pearsons and this paper will then compile a shortlist of candidates, who will be invited to a makeover and photoshoot day at the award-winning salon on either May 18 and 19.

"It doesn't matter if you feel you don't have the hair for it," added Tas.

"We will work with your locks, give you a new style and a makeover – you just need to send us a great selfie and show us some enthusiasm."

The candidates' photos will be published in this newspaper before facing a public telephone vote.

Those with the most votes will win their categories and the candidate with the highest number of votes will be named overall winner in early June.

Winners will be given a share of £200 vouchers for Pearsons, a bag of goodies from Pure, a framed 10x8 photograph of their winning entry and see their picture used on the salon's branding online and in store.

For more details, call Pure on 020 8363 2236.

● Check out this paper next week for instructions on how to take the perfect selfie by our chief photographer Anne-Marie Sanderson.

To enter, email a selfie, including your hair, plus contact details, to faceofenfield@nlhnews.co.uk by April 30

Students get a kick from Team GB call

Packing a punch: Evie Zacharias

By Viola Ajdini

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

THREE talented young kickboxers have been invited to train with Team GB.

Fash Ostowar, chief instructor and fitness guru at the Supreme Kickboxing Club, in Stockingswater Lane, Brimsdown, said it was timely recognition for the students, who have fought in many competitions and been praised for their achievements.

Assistant coach Klaudia Roszkowska, 16, was a winner at the World Association of Kickboxing Organisations' Championships last month.

Ostowar said: "She displayed great skill in her area of full-contact fighting. She can proceed to become K1 champion with this opportunity to train with Team GB."

Following in Klaudia's footsteps are students Lacey Leahair, 13, and Evie Zacharias, ten, who came second and third respectively in their categories at the same championships.

The trio started training with Team GB in Birmingham last weekend.

Ostowar said: "This opportunity means a lot. Everyone who competed from our team showed great skill, which means we're doing something right."

"This puts us on the map really and now everyone knows who we are."

Before their first training session, Evie's mum Egli Zacharias, 36, said her daughter was very excited about the chance.

She said: "She's shocked, stunned that she's got this chance and hopes that she will learn new techniques and have a chance of getting further since she will be travelling and gaining experience."

Lacey added: "I'm excited – it is a rare opportunity and I hope it will give me courage to take part in more competitions. My parents have encouraged me and are excited for me."

The young students will be travelling across the globe with Team GB and getting the opportunity to compete against the best.

Ostowar added: "They will all travel to Africa and Asia, around the world advancing their skills. This is the best route for them and a great success for us all."

Champion: Klaudia Roszkowska

Now he's retired, John is saving sanctuary animals

By Viola Ajdini

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

INJURED and neglected animals are now receiving expert surgical care at an animal sanctuary in Trent Park.

The Wildlife Rescue and Ambulance Service, run by Barry and June Smith, has added retired veterinarian John Gladstone to the team.

John has offered his services for free and of his recent cases have included a wood pigeon and a crow with air gun pellet wounds.

"I've always been interested in wildlife," he said, "and I knew that the centre needed help, so I brought all my equipment here and started.

"It's been a great learning curve. I've had the chance to understand the animals' behaviour."

John, 67, feels that every animal should be given a chance and deserves decent, sanitary conditions. For this to be achieved, the group needs funds and support from the community.

"The more facilities you have, the more you can do," he told the Advertiser.

He emphasised that it was important to have separate rooms for housing and treating the animals.

"Everything I do is in this one room and it's very difficult. I do the best I can," he added.

John has already dealt with many complex cases at the sanctuary, which is based in a shelter in Trent Park, off Cockfosters Road – and one of his success stories has been Furness, a hedgehog which was brought in after being severely burnt by firecrackers.

Since then it has been treated with seven anaesthetics and intensive skin care.

John, who works alone, is appealing for veterinary nurses to come forward to volunteer at the small clinic, two to three mornings a week.

He added: "We don't rehabilitate the animals to be caged, but to release them back into their habitats – and that's a great thing."

TWO garden design students are hoping to have their green-fingered talents recognised at the Ideal Home Show

This year's entry by Capel Manor College, in Bullsmoor Lane, Enfield, is a collaborative effort between Level 3 garden design students Vanessa Blain, 43, and Lucy Conochie, 31, and a team of nine horticulture students, who have brought the design to life.

Groups have been given a week to build and plant a garden for the Young Gardener of the Year competition outside Earl's Court, ready for the show's opening on Friday.

Six entries will be judged by a panel led by TV gardeners David Domoney and Prince's Foundation ambassador Diarmuid Gavin, along with Michael Romero, from the foundation.

The competition's guidelines are based on organic and sustainable principles championed by the foundation's president Prince Charles.

Speaking about factors that inspired the Capel Manor design, Cultivation Calm, Vanessa said: "Space and time is limited for people living in the city, so we really had to take this into consideration with our design.

"The plants we selected are mostly evergreens, so not only do they look good all year round, they are also generally easy to look after, reducing the time spent maintaining the garden."

Lucy added: "We have also used storm-water channels, which means the garden is able to distribute water where it needs it."

The entry has also inspired the college to produce the first of a series of advice sheets informing readers in using elements of garden design to create a soothing sanctuary, needing only low maintenance

Capel Manor, who were champions in 2011, face competition from five other horticultural colleges – Chichester, Sussex; Askham Bryan, North Yorkshire; Bridgewater, Somerset; Shuttlesworth, Bedfordshire; and Writtle, Essex.

The show runs until March 30

what's on

Motown is Maria's inspiration

By Viola Ajdini

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

MOTOWN is coming to Enfield Town – fresh and ready to take you back to the 1960s with a collection of originals as well as adapted covers.

With inspiration from Nina Simone, Smokey Robinson and Etta James, Enfield's own Maria Evangelou will be performing her music on Friday from 8pm at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road.

"My music attacks people from different age groups and different backgrounds because you can hum or sing along to the classics," she said.

"We'll have a six-piece band including keys, guitar, bass, drums and back-up singers. So we're gonna rock it. It's going to be loud."

As well as her performance at the Dugdale, the singer has a busy schedule and will perform a set of acoustic jazz at Forty Hall, in Forty Hill, Enfield, next Tuesday before returning to the borough for the Spellbound Festival in Edmonton this July.

She said: "I love performing at home. The borough has lifted me up and given me drive to keep writing songs and performing."

"The support from the community has been unbelievable. It's a lovely feeling knowing that you have people who appreciate what you're doing. I'm really proud."

The upcoming singer-song writer of Firs Lane, Palmers Green, was born and raised in the borough and went to St Anne's Catholic High School, in Oakthorpe Road, Palmers Green.

She currently teaches music at schools including Bush Hill Park Primary and Highfields Primary, in Winchmore Hill.

"It's great," she added.

"The kids at my schools have noticed the publicity I've been getting and have been really encouraging."

Tickets cost £13. The box office is on 020 8807 6680.

An awfully good evening's theatre

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

AS the opening strains of Chickenshed's anniversary production played through the theatre in Southgate on Friday evening, a shiver of excitement ran down my spine.

An Awfully BIG Performance is a showcase of the inclusive theatre's best works from the past 40 years, revisiting 15 previous performances, interspersed with celebrity endorsements and testimonials from cast members, by which even the most hard-hearted would struggle not to be moved.

Some 659 cast members illustrate the talents of the company's directors and performers across the disciplines of acting, singing and dancing, as well as their message of equality across and on the boards.

Beginning with the dismantling of a symbolic barn, the first half revisits some of Chickenshed's entertaining performances, beginning with the fast-paced dance of the young prince and princesses from Grimm

LAPARINE KRANTZ

Awfully big snapshots: Scenes from As the mother of a brown boy and Cirque into Freefall, dances from the show

Nights and Everafter Days and moving on to the high-octane adult Wedding Dance from The Attraction, first performed in 1990, showcasing the high level of performance abilities from the Chase Side-based company.

The second half reflects more of Chickenshed's message to society.

The chosen productions are more political, covering the topics of racism, crime and apartheid – and to really hammer the message home, the interlinking personal reflections of the impact the theatre company has had on members of the cast leave you in no doubt about Chickenshed's hopes and dreams for the future.

Having lived in Enfield my whole life and been a part of local youth theatres, albeit not with s, I've always been aware of the company's ethos.

But in the few productions I had seen, I had not been aware of the group's talent for physical theatre and dance.

Many a time throughout Friday's show I admired the technical abilities of the cast as well as the techniques used to include dancers of all capabilities into the central positions of the piece.

As a combined unit, the performances were fluid and malleable, challenging, modern or classical.

The physical disabilities of some of the performers were plain to see, but clever choreography allowed the audience to observe but not linger on the point.

Not fast – or furious

Need For Speed (12A, 130 mins) INSPIRED by a series of video games in which players get behind the wheel of souped-up motors, director Scott Waugh puts the pedal to the metal from the turbo-charged opening, which establishes a rivalry between cash-strapped protagonist (Aaron Paul) and cocky rival (Dominic Cooper) that drives the narrative to its predictably tragic resolution.

There are few surprises in George

Gatins' simplistic and linear script that casually revs its engine before delivering a high-speed finale that determines once and for all who is king of the winding highways.

The story centres on car mechanic Tobey Marshall (Paul), who runs his father's garage but is struggling to make ends meet so he relies on prize money from illegal street races.

He is king of the road until a race against Dino Brewster (Cooper) ends in an inferno.

Tobey is arrested and sentenced to time behind bars for a crime he did not commit while Dino walks free.

Two years later, Tobey is released and he swears revenge by competing against his nemesis in a race.

But he doesn't have a car so he borrows a turbo-charged vehicle and agrees to take car dealer Julia Maddon (Imogen Poots) in the passenger seat as insurance.

While the picture lacks depth and characterisation and the final 15 minutes feel like an anticlimax, Paul is extremely likeable.

Rising British star Poots also shines, but Cooper is insipid and lacks any menace.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chocs away... donate Easter eggs to kids' charity appeal

By Viola Ajdini
newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

GENEROUS Easter bunnies are being asked to donate chocolate eggs for a children's charity's Eggstravaganza event next month.

This year's appeal for Noah's Ark Children's Hospice has been launched and it is hoped donations will mean that every child supported by the charity will receive an egg for Easter.

Noah's Ark looks after around 900 children with life-limiting conditions and their families, in north London and south Hertfordshire.

The Easter eggs will also be used by Noah's Ark at its Easter Eggstravaganza event at Capel Manor Gardens, in Bullsmoor Lane, Enfield, which this year has been extended to two days of fun on April 18 and 19.

The egg appeal was launched at Asda superstore, in Chase Side, Southgate, on Thursday with a surprise visit from Baxterbear.

The bear, who has given his backing to many charities, has been a regular supporter of Noah's Ark. On Thursday, he posed for photographs with shoppers and greeted passers-by.

Voted as the number one Easter celebration by The Independent newspaper last year, the Capel Manor Eggstravaganza regularly attracts more than 1,500 people.

Taylan Uysal, the charity's community fundraising assistant, said: "When we first started running the event, we had no idea how successful and popular it would become.

"We couldn't have done it without the support of our amazing volunteers and groups like Edmonton Rotary Club and Skewbald Theatre."

She added: "This year we're calling on more community groups and businesses to get involved by inviting them to take a stall at the event or run an activity.

"If you're interested, then do get in touch as soon as possible as spaces are filling up fast."

For more information about taking a stall or running an activity at the event, call the fundraising team on 020 8449 8877 or email fundraising@noahsarkhospice.org.uk

The deadline to donate Easter eggs, which can be taken to the Noah's Ark appeal office, any Noah's Ark charity shops or businesses involved, in April 11. For the location of venues, visit noahsarkhospice.org.uk

Thinking of Selling?

If you were considering selling your home, you'll be pleased to know that there is no better time than now. With the current property market increasing particularly around London and the South East, the competition amongst agents is more buoyant than ever. For the first time in a decade, property prices are up with an average rise of 0.7% in January alone. While reporters are cautioning us of a potential rise in interest rates, homeowners are still left satisfied with the income they're receiving from their properties.

Though house prices have notoriously risen, it is particularly England and Wales which have seen the biggest rise. Prices rose for 51% of postcodes in February, the highest proportion since July 2004, according to reporters. More to the point, house prices in London are up by 1.1% each month, closely followed by the South East, up by 0.9%. These statistics certainly point towards a prospering economy for 2014, continuing the trend in rising property prices.

As a result, agents are left in dire need of new properties to market. There has been a noted influx in how quickly properties are coming on the market and selling shortly after. Admittedly, these conditions have made it difficult for first time buyers to jump onto the property ladder though home owners are left more than satisfied.

It is yet to be seen what the future has in store since the rumoured rise in interest rates has not been confirmed. But according to analysts, rates are unlikely to increase before the spring of 2015 and even so the Bank of England has a long way to go before they can beat the period between 1932 and 1951 where interest rates stayed at 2% for 19 years. We can assume that the demand for home owners will continue to rise as will the demand for home buyers as the marketplace continues to flourish.

If you're interested in selling your property or would like an up to date market appraisal of your home, please contact one of our property experts as we would be more than happy to assist you.

'Grown-up' Mini still more than a little fun

By Iain Dooley

It might have grown slightly, but there's no mistaking the oversize headlights and signature grille – it can only be a Mini.

That's all which is familiar about BMW's third-generation hatchback, however. Underneath the iconic shape lies an all-new platform, engines and transmissions, plus an increased focus on delivering an engaging yet refined driving experience.

And while the new car has grown slightly in all dimensions – 98mm in length, 44mm in width and 28mm longer between the wheels – the basic proportions and design cues remain.

Inside, the car's trademark oversize central speedometer has been repurposed to house the infotainment screen and the traditional key has been ditched in favour of a funky backlit engine start toggle switch.

It is blessed with (standard and cost-option) technology more commonly found in "grown-up" cars, such as a neat head-up display, parking camera and self-park function, user selectable electronic damper modes, DAB radio, intelligent cruise control and traffic sign recognition.

Back-seat passengers have more room – an old Mini bugbear – and the boot is a sensible size. It's still a bit of squeeze to get in the back, but once installed it's noticeably more comfortable while folding the back seats further enhances the car's versatility.

Cooper and go-faster Cooper S models make up the launch range, with the former utilising BMW's new 1.5-litre three-pot petrol motor and the latter a new two-litre petrol unit. All engines are turbocharged and significant economy and performance gains have been made across the board.

In popular Cooper guise, the car's new motor puts out a useful 134 horsepower, enabling the zero to 62mph sprint in 7.9 seconds. Also, power comes in much lower down the rev range, saving much stirring of the admittedly slick manual gear shift.

You can enjoy all this performance with an official combined economy figure of 62.8mpg and a tax-dodging 105g/km CO2 emissions rating.

And it is the same cake-and-eat-it scenario out on the road. The Mini Cooper delivers an engaging driving experience while maintaining a high level of comfort and refinement across a wide range of road conditions.

Electric power steering gives nothing away in terms of feel and contributes much to the previous car's "go kart-like" sensation that BMW is so keen to maintain, while engine response is right up there with dedicated sports cars.

The three-pot turbo motor even sounds the part, emitting a gruff, purposeful note when you're pressing on. But it's the car's ride and grip levels that impress most. The combination will flatter less experienced drivers and do much to keep them safe if they inadvertently test the limits of their talents. Yet the potential still exists for keen drivers to fully exploit the Mini's playful character.

And, unlike its predecessor, this third-gen Mini's ride boasts a more supple and mature character, resulting in a vastly more enjoyable experience when encountering poorly surfaced urban streets.

The important thing to take away from this all-new Mini experience is that, while the car has increased slightly in size, is more refined and comes with all the toys you'd expect to find in more grown-up cars, BMW has ensured the fun factor remains right at the heart of the experience.

Putting Enfield First

Edmonton County School
Great Cambridge Road, Enfield
Middlesex EN1 1HQ

Learning Resource Base Manager

Permanent
Required as soon as possible

Edmonton County School is looking to recruit a Learning Resource Base Manager to work in our newly refurbished Library on our Cambridge Campus. We are looking for a highly motivated individual who will help with the running of the school library by assisting library users, supervising pupils, replacing stock on the shelves and using the school computer system to maintain and control the circulation of the library stock.

Edmonton County School is a mixed, multicultural, dual campus school with a genuinely comprehensive intake. We are a good school with outstanding aspects and we aim to be an outstanding school. We are a heavily oversubscribed school, which has a reputation for providing outstanding support for staff and students.

The school is in an exciting stage of its development and we welcome applications from people who want to become part of a consistently improving school.

Actual Salary - Range: £14,234 - £14,849 p.a inc (Scale 2)
(Scale 3 is available for a candidate willing to take on scale appropriate responsibilities).

Hours: 36 hours per week, 39 weeks per year

Closing date is, 12noon, Friday 21 March 2014

Interviews to be held soon after closing date.

Edmonton County School
Little Bury Street, Edmonton
London N9 9JZ

Teaching Assistant

Permanent
Required as soon as possible

This is an exciting time in the life of our expanding school and a great opportunity to be part of its future!

On January 2014 Edmonton County became an all-through school from age 4 to 19. It has opened its doors to two classes that consist of Reception and Year 1 children who will soon become Year 2; growing every year from here on. We are now seeking to appoint an ambitious, passionate, committed and inspiring Teaching Assistant, to be part of a growing team, to help nurture and support all children, ensuring pupils make excellent progress. We are looking for an exceptional classroom practitioner who has the ability and expertise to lead small groups of children to further support children's progress.

We are a good school with outstanding aspects and we aim to be an outstanding school. We are in an exciting stage of development and we welcome applications from people who want to become part of a consistently improving school.

This is a special opportunity. If you are someone that has endless enthusiasm and will go that 'extra mile' for children and families then we would love to hear from you.

Teaching Assistants with a variety of experience are welcome to apply.

Actual Salary Range: £15,098 - £16,047 pa inc. (Scale 3)

Hours: 36 hours per week x 39 weeks per annum

Apply online direct by downloading an application pack from the school website www.edmontoncounty.co.uk

School contact: Georgia Chacholiades at Recruitment@edmonton.enfield.sch.uk

Closing date is, 12noon, Wednesday 26 March 2014

Please note that due to a high response of applicants being expected, unsuccessful applicants will not be contacted.

SHERWOOD BLASTS SORRY TOTTENHAM

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

HEAD coach Tim Sherwood slammed his Tottenham Hotspur side following their second-half capitulation at Chelsea in the Premier League on Saturday.

Having been level at the interval, Spurs conceded four times in the second period to slump to a 4-0 defeat that dealt another blow to their fading hopes of securing a top-four finish.

The defeat was the fourth time this season that Tottenham have been beaten by at least a four-goal margin in the league – following on from their two matches against Manchester City and their home game against Liverpool – and Sherwood was far from impressed with what he saw from his side in the second half.

“We aren’t going to finish in the top four if you can’t beat the top teams,” he said. “It’s not going to happen, you’re miles away unless you beat the top teams.

“You have to pick up some points. We beat Manchester United and Everton, but you can’t rely on rolling over the smaller sides – it doesn’t work out like that. We did all right in patches, but there are too many blips. People at the club are talking about fourth, but they need to wake up.

“The first goal, anyone can slip and it’s a bad error, the second one – the penalty and the sending-off – has gone against us unfortunately and the game has gone after that, but it still doesn’t legislate for the capitulation. You can’t have that.

“Too many of them are too nice to each other. You need to show a bit more gut and not want to be someone’s mate all the time and it can’t always be me having a pop – they have to drag it out of each other.”

Sherwood added: “It hurts me. I’m not going to forget this by the time we hit the motorway. Some might – but now we go on to the next match. That is the nature of the game.

“We have a game on Thursday against Benfica in the Europa League and we have to get out there

Unhappy coach: Tim Sherwood felt his Tottenham side capitulated in the second half at Chelsea on Saturday and show a performance. We owe it to the fans – they were fantastic for us on Saturday, but we let them down again on the big occasion.”

After competing well in the first half, Tottenham were largely the architects of their own downfall at Stamford Bridge, with bad errors by Jan

Vertonghen, Sandro and Kyle Walker leading to the first, third and fourth goals, while the second came from the spot following a challenge on Samuel Eto’o by Younes Kaboul that led to the Frenchman being sent off.

“It wasn’t a penalty and it wasn’t a sending-off,”

Sherwood said. “I thought we were solid in the first half. They didn’t create many chances.

“Eden Hazard had one chance, but other than that we were making chances ourselves and opening them up. Once we gave the first goal away, we seemed to lose our heads. I’m gutted.”

Double victory sees Borough continue good run

HARINGEY BOROUGH continued their good run of form by securing a 3-2 victory over Ilford in the Essex Senior League on Saturday.

The match was supposed to be a home game for Borough, but the continuing problems with the pitch at Coles Park led to the contest being switched to Ilford’s Cricklefield Stadium – and the decision was justified as they recorded their third win in four matches since returning from their two-and-a-half month weather-enforced break.

Borough took the lead on 24 minutes through a powerful Anthony McDonald strike from 15 yards out, but there was little other incident of note in a drab first half.

Nine minutes into the second period

Borough looked to have made the game safe when Dewayne Clarke pounced on a poor clearance to slam the ball into the roof of the net.

However, Ilford hit back and they reduced the deficit on 64 minutes as Musa Mennah’s shot somehow squirmed through keeper Ashley Harris before grabbing the equaliser through Aaron Harriott following a 76th-minute goal-mouth scramble.

Borough were not to be denied though and they grabbed what proved to be the winner four minutes later, McDonald applying the finishing touches to a fine move by drilling into the net.

Saturday’s triumph followed on from a stunning 7-0 victory at Sporting Bengal United last Wednesday – in a match which saw Borough play with just ten men for 75 minutes.

Nick Nicou and Daniel Aristidou put the visitors 2-0 before Clarke saw red for retaliation, but Borough shrugged off their numerical disadvantage to add a third through Aristidou just before the interval.

The second half proved even more one-sided, with Aristidou completing his hat-trick and McDonald, Dean Fenton and Darrell Cox also getting on the scoresheet against a dispirited Sporting Bengal side who had two men dismissed in the closing stages.

Haringey Borough entertain Bowers and Pitsea tomorrow (7.45pm), before making the trip to Southend Manor on Saturday (3pm).

Spurs facing a defensive crisis

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR are facing a potential central defensive crisis ahead of their Premier League showdown at home to bitter rivals Arsenal on Sunday.

Already without Vlad Chiriches, Spurs suffered another injury setback against Chelsea on Saturday when skipper Michael Dawson picked up a hamstring strain.

To make matters worse, Younes Kaboul’s controversial dismissal in the same match means that he will also miss Sunday’s derby if Tottenham’s appeal against his red card is rejected – leaving Jan Vertonghen as their only senior central defender available for selection.

And Kaboul is well aware that Spurs will need to produce a much-improved performance if they are to avoid defeat against Arsenal.

He said: “When you look at the game, if someone watched the first half and didn’t watch the rest and then saw the scoreline of 4-0, they would ask ‘what happened?’

“The thing I’m upset about is that we fell apart after 2-0. I thought we started the game very well, we played some good football and could have scored.

“We started the second half well as well, but then we made a mistake and then the second goal.

“After that, we fell apart really and it’s not good enough. We have to do much better than that, even if there are consequences in the game that go against us. We should have a better reaction.”
